R E P O R T

OF THE

BOARD OF MANAGERS OF THE NATIONAL ASYLUM FOR DISABLED
VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS.

JULY 18, 1867.—Laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

To the honorable the Senate and the House of Representatives in Congress assembled.

The board of managers of the National Asylum for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, in obedience to the directions of the act of Congress founding the establishment, beg leave to report :

Immediately upon the passage of the act of March 21, 1866, the managers were called together by notification from Benjamin F. Butler, one of the managers selected, to each member of the board, and a meeting was had on the 16th of May following, at which, a majority of the members being present, the act was accepted by a vote of all present, and the absent members, not being ex officio such, signified their acceptance of the positions assigned them, and an organization was effected by the choice of Benjamin F. Butler, of Massachusetts, as president, and Hon. Lewis B. Gunckel, of Ohio, secretary. A committee was chosen to prepare a code of by-laws for the government of the asylum, and at a subsequent meeting such by-laws were established, a copy of which is appended to this report.

Active measures were taken to bring before the board proposals for sites of the branches of the asylum, by copious advertisements, which would serve a double purpose of bringing the establishment to the notice of the disabled volunteers, so they might apply for relief to the board, and to enable the board to ascertain the most desirable location for such sites.

It was determined by the board, after much discussion and deliberation, that there should be three branches of the asylum, one in the northwest, one in the northeast, and one near the geographical centre of the loyal States which furnished large bodies of troops to extinguish the rebellion, preferably in as low a latitude as might be. After a careful examination by a committee, consisting of Governor Smyth of New Hampshire and the Hon. Lewis Gunckel of Ohio, a very desirable location was selected for the northeastern branch, about four miles from Augusta, the capital of the State of Maine. The board obtained title to something more than a thousand acres of land, with very valuable buildings thereon, very well adapted to the purposes of the asylum. The purchase was a remarkably cheap one, more than three times the amount paid having been expended upon the land and buildings by the former proprietor. Jurisdiction over this property was ceded to the United States by an act of the legislature of the State of Maine, a copy of which is hereto annexed.

This establishment was without delay fitted up, and on the 1st day of November began receiving disabled soldiers and officers.

The lady managers of the Soldiers' Home at Milwaukee early offered their funds and land, designed for a site of a State charitable institution of like kind, to the board, for the use of our asylum. This donation exceeded in cash value the sum of one hundred and ten thousand dollars.

The only expressed or implied condition to this magnificent gift was that a branch of the national asylum shall be located near the city of Milwaukee. The board, through its president and a committee, examined the places designated for a branch asylum in the northwest, and found no objection to the proposition, except the high price of land near that city; but as the donation to be received more than covered that objection, the board determined to place a branch of the asylum near that city.

The other site in Ohio has not been yet determined.

By the 12th section of the act of establishment the property of the United States at Point Lookout, Maryland, was to become the property of the asylum, as soon as a satisfactory title to three hundred (300) acres of the land, on which such property was situated, was given to the asylum.

Miss Delphine T. Baker, a lady largely engaged in caring for the wants of soldiers during the war, who claimed to have a right to the title to such land, offered the same to the board as a donation, to do with it what we chose to do. The board, however, found insuperable objections to Point Lookout for a site of one of the branches of the asylum. To say but little of its inaccessibility, and other objections of neighborhood, the fact that it had been for a large part of the war a depot of rebel prisoners seemed to render it repulsive to American soldiers. The board found difficulties enough in the minds of the soldiers at the thought of leaving their homes and families to go to what seemed to them erroneously a hospital life, to determine the rejection of a place having such unsavory recollections.

It was suggested by Miss Baker that the board might accept the Point Lookout property, and then sell it and use the proceeds for the benefit of the asylum if best not to have a branch there, but it being shown to the board that the property had not been in fact paid for, and that Miss Baker relied upon the generous benevolence of those interested in the welfare of our wounded and disabled soldiers to buy it by their contributions, it was not deemed just or proper to permit Miss Baker to appeal to the generous public to obtain the means of paying for Point Lookout, as a soldiers' home, when in truth the board had decisively determined against it for such purpose, and would only receive it as another form of cash donation. Therefore all concern with the Point Lookout property was rejected by the board.

A system of organization of officers and soldiers at the eastern branch had been devised and partly carried out, giving to soldiers who are inclined and able to work a portion of their earnings. This has been found to work admirably, but the small number of those seeking the benefits of the institution has prevented the experiment from being fully tried.

A great difficulty has been found in inducing disabled soldiers to go to the asylum. Their principal objection is that they will be separated from their families. This objection is so strong as to obtain where the soldier had become so far reduced as to be relieved as a pauper by the county town in which he resided.

By the act of incorporation the board are not allowed to receive the wives or children of soldiers, so that of necessity his being received into the asylum debars him from the society of his family.

The board would respectfully suggest that some further enabling legislation might well be had to allow, under proper safeguards and regulations, the wives and children of the soldier to be with him at least on the lands of the asylum. Losing a leg or an arm does not emasculate the soldier or destroy within him the parental feelings. Is it not due to those who fought our battles for us and have been disabled in the fight to give them every comfort in their declining years? Is not the society of one's wife and children the greatest of all comforts? Would it not be exceeding cruelty to an officer or soldier who might have a wife and children dependent upon him, to take him away from them, and while he was supported with comfort in the asylum, leave them to starve? The soldier who would not prefer to stay and starve with his family, if need be, would hardly be worth preserving.

The law has provided that the board may administer "out-door relief," to a limited extent, in such manner as they may judge expedient. Under this provision it has been proposed to build detached cottages on the grounds of the asylum (ample lands having been purchased in that view among other purposes) and allow disabled soldiers to occupy them with their families, to cultivate a garden attached, and thus aid themselves with the help of the asylum, at an expense not exceeding that which a soldier wholly cared for in the asylum building would cost.

This experiment it is proposed to try, and plans and estimates are being prepared for the proper constructions, and it is in contemplation to build a sufficient number of such cottages to amply test this method of relief.

While getting our own asylum building forward, we have been called upon to aid other State institutions of like character, and in each case where application has been made, just and liberal assistance has been offered.

Most active and vigorous measures have been taken to search out and remove to the asylum all disabled soldiers who were in any almshouse. In some cases relief has been afforded, and the soldier cared for outside the almshouse, where, for reasons before stated, he declined to go to the asylum. It is believed that there is no case in that section of the country for which the eastern branch has been established, where any disabled soldier now is supported in any almshouse; certainly none who chose to go to the asylum, that has been brought to the knowledge of the board. In addition, each member of the board has been authorized to expend such, reasonable relief, not exceeding the cost of supporting a soldier in the asylum, as he might see proper upon all deserving objects.

No better illustration of the benefits of out-door relief can be afforded than is shown in the admirable report of Mr. Gunckel, the secretary of the board, of his administration of such relief, which is hereto appended, and to which special attention is invited.

There is, up to the present time, little call, in comparison with the whole number of disabled soldiers, for the relief which this establishment is designed to afford. The causes for this are obvious.

The grand munificence of our people, both private and public, by voluntary associations and State institutions, is magnificently caring for the disabled soldier. In most cases also he has returned to his family, and, with that love of independence of government and self-reliance which we boast as distinctive of the American character, is supported by his immediate friends. And in many cases the soldier, although disabled, is at present able to support himself.

But time wears on. The family is separated, the supporting parent or child dies; the consequences of the hardships of the campaign or shock of the wound becomes developed in the system. Age increases, taking all capacity or will to earn, and private and public donations dwindle by the loss of the incitement of the war, or are devoted to new objects. Thus our establishment will become more and more necessary in the immediate future, and we shall hardly get our preparatiions fully completed before these accommodations will be needed to their fullest capacity. Then it will be that the necessity for this institution will be fully seen, and the benefits of this most noble endowment most clearly appreciated.

The asylum is now administering to the necessities of more than a thousand soldiers in the several modes of relief above stated. Many of these beneficiaries are entirely helpless and fit subjects for a hospital only.

The benefits of the asylum are becoming known, and the indications are that the board will need to act with energy and rapidity in repairing the necessary buildings to keep up with the demands likely to be pressingly made upon the establishment.

The attention of Congress is requested to the provision as to the assets for the support of the institution.

While ample funds have been provided from the fines and forfeitures and loss of pay occurring during the war, yet the manner in which it is to be got from the treasury is not so apparent.

Besides, the examination of the accounts is necessarily so slow, because of the want of clerical force in the Auditor's office, that it may be many years before the amount of funds actually due to the asylum can be ascertained, and thus much loss of the interest which ought to accrue to this fund will be suffered. Besides it is respectfully suggested that it should be provided by law that the funds appropriated to the institution should, as soon as the amounts are ascertained, be passed to the credit of the institution in the treasury of the United States. Now, by the rules of the Treasury Department, they can only be drawn by a requisition of the Secretary of War, thus putting at the discretion of that officer an institution of which he is only ex officio one of the twelve managers.

It is not impossible that in the future there may be a Secretary of War from one of the States lately in rebellion, who will not appreciate the sacrifices of our disabled veterans as does the present incumbent, who has never failed to attend a meeting of the board, and to give every aid and facility to our operations; or, more possible still, one who will be more interested in those who fought on the other side.

In such case the power of thus controlling this great fund for relief would be dangerously invested.

The board of managers have been called upon to mourn the loss by death of one of their members, Colonel George H. Walker, of Wisconsin. Our deceased friend, even in the short time in which we had been associated, had endeared himself to us by his genial kindness of character and active benevolence, which prompted him at the greatest possible sacrifice of personal comfort, and health even, to come from his distant home to attend every meeting of the board, and to aid in setting on foot the enterprise. Appropriate resolutions of sympathy with his bereaved family were unanimously placed on our records.

Another member of the board, General P. Joseph Osterhaus, being called into the public service abroad, resigned his position. The vacancies in both cases have been filled.

The board submit a certified copy of their records, appended hereto, so that every corporate act of the asylum may be seen and understood by Congress, and be subject to its revision or approval.

A statement of the amounts drawn from the treasury on account of the asylum, and expended for its use up to the sixth day of March, is hereto appended.

With the earnest hope and belief that the action of the board merits and will receive the approbation of Congress, this report is respectfully submitted.

For the board of managers :

Which was adapted.

Mr. Secretary Stanton offered the following as a substitute for said resolution, which was agreed to :

Resolved, That the executive committee be instructed to examine further for a suitable site for the central asylum, giving particular attention to the following districts :

Said resolution was then adopted.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 6, 1860.

Resolved, That as the ladies of Milwaukee have tendered a donation of $95,000 in money, and twenty-six acres of valuable land in the city of Milwaukee, as an inducement to locate one of the asylums at or near that city, and as the committee appointed at the last meeting of the board has reported favorably in regard to establishing a branch asylum in the immediate vicinity of Milwaukee, that Governor Smythe, Mr. Gunckel, and Dr. Wolcott be appointed a committee to proceed to Milwaukee and, in behalf of the board, make purchase of such property as they may deem suitable, and to complete all the arrangements for establishing the northwestern branch of the asylum at that point, as speedily as possible.

The president reported the action of the executive committee in the purchase of the Togus Springs property, near Augusta, Maine, for the sum of fifty thousand dollars, the purchase being conditioned on the cession by the State of Maine of jurisdiction and the right to collect taxes on said property, and in organizing and opening the eastern branch of the asylum at said place ; which was approved.

The president presented also the written report of General Hinks, governor of the asylum, giving the details of the repairs and improvements made on said property, and of the appointment of officers temporarily for said branch asylum, and of the opening of the same for reception of disabled soldiers, together with an estimate of the appropriation necessary for support of the asylum for next quarter ; which was ordered to be placed on file.

For first vice-president, General J. H. Martindale ; for second vice-president, Hon. Jay Cooke.

On motion, the following resolution was adopted :

Resolved, That the committee, consisting of Governor Smythe, Mr. Gunckel, and Dr. Walcott, appointed to go Milwaukee, be, and are hereby, instructed to select a site for the central asylum at some suitable place in southern Ohio, and report such selection to the next meeting of the board.

Mr. Gunckel offered the following resolution, which was agreed to :

Resolved, That Congress be requested to so amend the act creating the asylum as to provide that a manager, when elected to Congress after his appointment as such manager, shall not be thereby disqualified from continuing as a member of this board.

On motion, the president was authorized to select a plan for buildings of the central asylum, with cottages suitable for any of the asylums, and report to the next meeting of the board.

The president presented a communication from Surgeon General Barnes, notifying the board of a donation of $10,339 04, intrusted to him for transmission to the board, by the council of administration of the army of the Potomac, through Colonel T. A. McParlin, United States army, which was ordered to be placed on file ; and thereupon the following resolution was adopted :

Resolved, That the thanks of the board of managers of the National Asylum be tendered to the council of administration of the army of the Potomac, June 29, 1865, for the liberal donation of ten thousand three hundred and thirty-nine dollars and four cents from the excess of accumulations of the hospital fund of that army, and that the same be received by the president and applied to the object of the asylum.

The president then made to the board the following statement, which was ordered to be placed upon the minutes :

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 6, 1866.

GENTLEMEN OF THE BOARD OF MANAGERS : In accordance with the requirements of the by-laws, I have the honor to submit the following estimates of sums probably needed for the use of the asylum for the ensuing quarter :

For payments for the buildings and lands of the eastern branch..	$50, 000
To meet deficiencies of payment for construction and repairs and the support of the eastern branch for the ensuing three months, as per report of the governor.....	25, 000
To pay for the site and buildings thereon of the western branch..	100, 000

This appropriation will be economical, as the funds given by the ladies of Milwaukee to buy the site, say $95,000, is invested in 7 3-10 bonds at interest, while the money in the treasury, the property of the asylum, does not bear interest ; the donation fund can therefore remain at interest for construction purposes, bonds being sold as needed.

For out-door relief and incidental expenses, and to supply amounts drawn from that appropriation heretofore applied to construction and support of eastern asylum, as per report of governor.....	45, 000
In addition there will be the donation from the army of the Potomac, say.....	11, 000
But as that is at interest, it is better that it be not disturbed.

Total.....	231, 000

ASYLUM FOR DISABLED SOLDIERS.

*Out-door relief.*DAYTON, OHIO, December 15, 1866.

DEAR SIR: I have the honor to report that, as a member of the executive committee, I have given out-door relief to thirty-nine disabled soldiers, residing in the States of Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, and Michigan, during the last quarter. Of these, thirteen had each lost one arm and were besides suffering from other ailments, four had lost each one leg, one had lost both hands, three had become blind and one almost blind, two were in the last stages of consumption, six confined to bed by paralysis, palsy, or spinal diseases, contracted in the service. All were married men, (I have refused many applications from unmarried men,) and had dependent upon them, one a wife and five children, eight each a wife and four children, nine each a wife and three children, two each a wife and two children, one a wife and one child, two each a child and an aged invalid mother. All were very poor, without property, without money, and without any means of support. All had been mechanics or laboring men dependent for the support of themselves and families upon their daily labor. Before the war, while able-bodied and in good health they had commanded good wages and easily earned the means of comfortable support. Now, it is altogether impossible. Some will never be able to earn a living; others may do so after a while, after they have gotten well and learned some other and lighter trade. For the present, they must be helped, or suffering, and in some cases death, from the want of sufficient food and clothing will be inevitable. While a large majority of the disabled soldiers can be best cared for in asylums, I am satisfied, from my observation and experience during the past three months, that there are hundreds of married men in the west, wholly disabled, who will not, and ought not to be asked to, leave their families and go to an asylum, but who ought to be helped at home by what we term "out-door relief."

Besides the relief thus extended to individuals, I have largely aided the Indiana Soldiers' Home, an admirably conducted institution, heretofore sustained by voluntary contributions, which have of late almost wholly failed. If the legislature of that State shall fail to make an appropriation at its coming session, we shall have thrown upon us the entire burden of sustaining the Home. I have in like manner assisted several other voluntary associations in the west laboring to care for the disabled soldier, and in that way have given relief in a number of equally deserving cases.

I take the liberty of appending hereto extracts from some of the many letters received by me from soldiers asking or receiving relief, believing that they will show better than anything else the importance of the work in which we are engaged, and the grateful appreciation of its results on the part of those whom it aims to assist.

Very respectfully,

LEWIS B. GUNCKEL.

Major General B. F. BUTLER,

P. S.—I have in no case relied on the mere statements of the applicant. The facts stated are in all cases substantiated by affidavits or certificates from army officers, surgeons, county or town officers, known citizens, &c.

Extracts from letters.

One writes: "I am wounded and sick in bed, with wife and three children dependent upon me, and I have no money, and no property, and can't work. Unless you or somebody help us we will all perish this winter."

Another: "Before the war I was a shoemaker and made a good easy living; enlisted twice without bounty, got wounded, and am now so helpless that I can't even mend a shoe, much less make one; and now if you would come to my house you would find my wife and four children shoeless and almost without clothing; winter coming and not a cent to my name, to buy them with. What shall we do? How can we live till spring?"

Another: "I send you my heartfelt thanks for your prompt relief. I will not need it long, but that God will bless you and all the managers of the National Asylum is the prayer of an invalid soldier, who never expects to be any better."

Another: "I was surprised to see the list of managers in your letter, and to think that our leading men are taking an interest in us poor soldiers, and trying to do something for us and our families. I lost my right arm at Vicksburg. I had nothing when I went into the service, and I've got nothing now; only I could easily get work then, but can't now; for there is little a man can do with a left arm. I'll soon get my $15 pension, but I owe it for the corn bread we have ate, and where the winter grub is to come from I don't know."

A town trustee writes: "E—— is badly crippled for life, and utterly unable to support himself and family. He has a wife and four little children almost barefooted, and without even food enough to eat. The neighbors have helped but unless they get some other help they will suffer terribly this winter."

A soldier writes: "I was surprised to find there was such an institution as the National Asylum; that it was possible for the government to be so magnanimous to her crippled soldiers. * * * I left two-thirds of my left arm on the sacred soil. Three long years have I been toiling with one arm to support myself and aged mother. Alas, what a support it has been! A poor, scanty, miserable existence. Why, sir, I begged the paper on which I write, and I have not so much as three cents to buy a postage stamp for this letter. I am a beggar, a poor pauper, and a drug to society. And why? * * * * The government might give us situations, but we have learned that we might as well apply at the Sandwich Islands as at Washington. Those big officials will walk clear around a whole square to avoid meeting a crippled soldier, for fear they will have to give him a dime. * * * If they only knew what it was to be without bread and to hear their children crying for bread and not be able to give it, they wouldn't blame us for allowing our feelings to run away with us occasionally."

Another writes: "I have served four years and over, received four wounds, and lost my general health; can't half live on my pension, for I have a wife and four children, and have not earned anything since my discharge. I worked at farming work before the war, but can't now. Unless you can help us we shall all have to go to the poor-house this winter."

And another: "I hasten to return thanks for your help. It came just in time, for my wife has been very sick, and I was able to buy her some clothes and provisions. * * * My family bless you for your kindness, and you will also accept my heartfelt thanks for your prompt attention in my distress, in this hour of need. This National Asylum is a noble institution; if it hadn't been for it, I would have suffered. * * * My regards to the managers of the National Asylum, 'that noble work of charity,' and may God bless and prosper the institution."

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That the following persons only shall be entitled to the benefits of the asylum, and may be admitted thereto, upon the recommendation of three of the board of managers, namely: all officers and soldiers who served in the late war for the purpose of suppressing the rebellion, and not provided for by existing laws, who have been or may be disabled by wounds received or sickness contracted in the line of their duty; and such of these as have neither wife, child, nor parent dependent upon them, on becoming inmates of this asylum, or receiving relief therefrom, shall assign thereto their pensions, when required by the board of managers, during the time they shall remain therein or receive its benefits.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That so much of the act to which this is an amendment as provides for the establishment of a naval in connection with a military asylum, and so much of said act as provides that all stoppages of fines adjudged against naval officers and seamen by sentence of courts-martial or military commission, all forfeitures on account of desertions from the naval service, and all moneys due to deceased naval officers and seamen which are or may be unclaimed for three years after the death of such officers and seamen, shall be appropriated for the establishment of the asylum contemplated and provided for by this act and the act of which it is amendatory, be, and the same is hereby, repealed.
