Federal Recovery Coordination Program

The Federal Recovery Coordination Program (FRCP), a joint program of the Departments of Defense and Veterans Affairs, provides support for the recovery, rehabilitation and reintegration of severely injured, ill or wounded Service Members or Veterans, as well as the needs of their families.

The Federal Recovery Coordination Program is open to any Post 9-11 Active Duty, National Guard or Reserve Service Member or Veteran who may have one or more of the following problems:

Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI),
Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD),
Spinal Cord Injury (SCI),
Burns,
Amputation,
Blindness or Visual Limitations,
At risk for psychological complications.

If you think you may qualify, or know someone who may, request a referral from your health care professional or your Military Wounded Warrior Program case manager. You may also self refer by calling 1-877-732-4456

Federal Recovery Coordinator

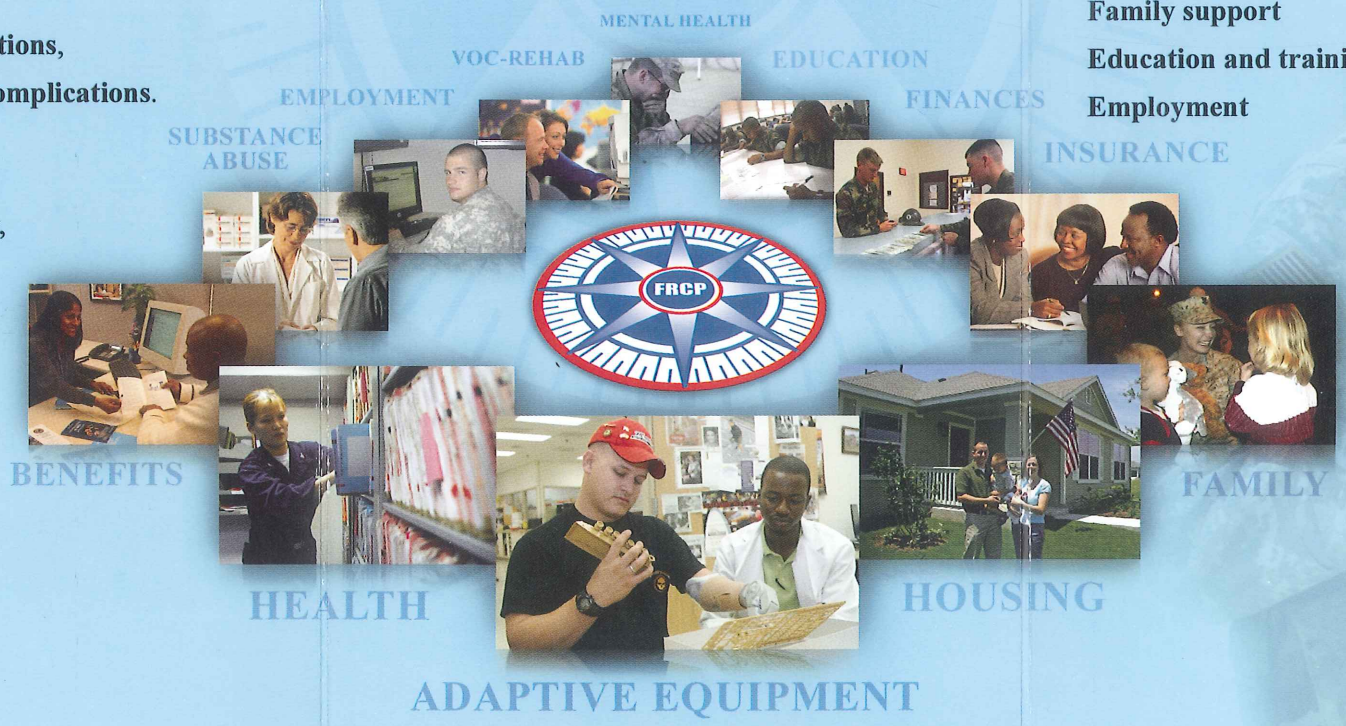
The Federal Recovery Coordinator (FRC) will assist in identifying and coordinating the medical and non-medical care and services needed to support the Service Member or Veteran through recovery, rehabilitation and reintegration into the community.

The FRC works with the Service Member or Veteran, his/her family, Military liaisons, Military Service Wounded Warrior Program personnel, and members of the multi-disciplinary team including doctors, nurses, and social workers.

Federal Individual Recovery Plan

Individuals enrolled in the FRCP will receive a Federal Individual Recovery Plan (FIRP). The Plan is developed with the FRC, the multi-disciplinary team, the Service Member or Veteran and his/her family. It identifies all personal and professional goals, the resources needed to accomplish those goals, and the individuals responsible for assisting in achieving the goals. These goals may be related to:

Benefits
Housing
Transportation
Medical care
Rehabilitative care
Family support
Education and training
Employment



"The FRCP is critical for providing Wounded Warriors the support they have earned through their sacrifice and service"
