1. The National Coalition of Homeless Veterans which provided basic concepts and core information for this guide through its “Planning for Your Release” Guide funded by the U.S. Department of Labor;
2. The Veterans Incarcerated Workgroup of Walla Walla, Washington, for the concept of state-specific information in its “Guidebook for Incarcerated Veterans” and for allowing the use of its guide as a template for this publication;
3. The Vietnam Veterans of America, Inc., for developing the first Incarcerated Veterans Guidebook, which has inspired and informed subsequent efforts;
4. The Veterans Incarcerated Workgroup of Portland, Oregon for their efforts in writing the initial version of “A Guide for Incarcerated Veterans;”
5. Any public domain and agency resources included in the current guidebook.
Reentry Guide Format Rationale:

The current Guide is formatted differently than former versions due to the fact that it provides location-specific VA and community-based resources information for communities to where veterans actually release, as opposed to simply listing general resources by region. In some cases, it was not possible to add an HCRV Reentry Plan for each community. In those cases, there are plans for most large communities across the state. Not all communities are represented in this guide, though there is a listing of major cities or towns within each of Oregon’s 36 counties.

The current framework in rewriting the 2016 guide has been adopted so that each releasing Veteran, as well as prison staff involved in reentry, community corrections staff, and families assisting with reentry efforts for veterans will be able to become acquainted with helping resources that are located as closely as possible to the Veteran’s actual location of release. During the process of assisting veterans to obtain reentry resources over the past 8 years, HCRV has found that even with location-specific Reentry Resource Plans Veterans repeatedly report that “having a list of local resources greatly diminishes our anxiety in anticipation of being released to a community where we may/may not be familiar with local surroundings.”

The Reentry Specialist has provided a listing of local resources so that each Veteran will be able to independently connect with Case-managed VA outreach services and community-based resources immediately following release. Location-specific resource information provides a tool for institution-based reentry/release staff to use during the process of assisting Veterans in advance of release so they have the greatest rate of reentry success possible. In the majority of cases, the HCRV Specialist has kept the length of each Reentry Resource Plan to one page for ease of Veteran use and transport along with the suggestion that each Veteran place the plan on their refrigerator or mirror once settled following release so that they will be able to refer to their Reentry Resource Plan for future reference.

Every effort was made for the current resources to be accurate. If while using the guide, you try to contact a resource and it is not current, please do your best to obtain the current information by calling 211 or by doing a Google or Bing web search. In order to preserve the value of this document, we respectfully request that if you discover any incorrect, conflicting, or out-of-date information in the Guidebook, please send the discrepancies and corrected information (if you have it) to:

Using this Guide and Seeking Help:

This guide is for you, the reentry Veteran, to use while planning for your release. Keep it, as it will also be useful reference after you release from prison. This guide contains addresses, phone numbers and websites that you or your prison reentry/release counselor/planner, family member or friend will be able to use in order to identify programs and other forms of help that will be available after you release. You may want to ask a friend or family member for assistance in locating resources in the guide in the event that you do not currently have access to either telephone or the internet. Please keep in mind that this guide does NOT include all of the services available to you. Also, resources that are available in one geographic location may not be available in others. So it will be important that you or your reentry representative identify local resources to learn about services in the specific location of your release.

While you are still in prison but are preparing for release, work with your DOC Release Counselor (and Transition Coordinator if your facility has such) to assist you to plan for your release. Also, find out if your prison offers Road to Success transition classes that can help to prepare you for life after leaving prison. Reentry classes offer skills development to help you prepare to live successfully in society following release. You do not want to risk becoming homeless following release, so take advantage of all of the opportunities available to you prior to your release. Begin thinking about the specific resources that you will need following release and write down your list of needs so that you can discuss them with your institution’s Release Counselor, as well as your VA Reentry Coordinator when you meet with him/her. Begin by asking yourself the following questions: Will I need housing? Will I need medical care, substance abuse treatment or mental health care? Do I have any other legal issues such as Child Support or a warrant from a different county that I will need to address before being cleared to move forward with my post-release life? How will I restart my VA checks or my Supplemental Security Income (SSI/SSDI)? There are DOC staff dedicated to helping you answer these questions (and more) – specific to your situation.

Make a list of your needs. Remember that the following is just a tool to help you get organized. A sample list might look like this:

- I need a place to live. Identify housing options to be considered.
- I have prescription medications that will run out soon after release.
- I need a job.
- I need clothing to wear after release and/or to work.
- I need to find out what kinds of Veterans benefits are available to me.
- I will be required to obtain addictions treatment and need to find out where to go.
- I owe back child support.

Think about your list as you read this guide. Work with your DOC Release Counselor and/or Transition Coordinator as they can help you obtain answers or help you apply for services as part of release planning. Once in the community, look into organizations where you will be able to get all of your needs met at one location – or you may need to contact several agencies. Keep track of the steps that you take to learn about the resources available. You might keep a log of the dates and names of the people you contact for assistance as well as what they told you in response to your resource investigation. Although this guide provides national and state addresses for many organizations, we additionally recommend that you contact 211 and/or check your city of release’s telephone directory to obtain information on local, county and state agencies that will know what is available in your area.

When writing a letter to request information, be clear and concise. Keep your letter short, to the point and write clearly so the receiving agency will be able to easily read your request letter. Include the following information:

- Your name and contact information
- A brief statement about your current situation
- Your specific request
- Inform on the steps you have taken so far, for example: “I have written to ___________ organization. They suggested that I contact you.”
- Inform the agency you are writing to of any restrictions in returning a response to you, for example: “Mail with staples or paper clips will not be accepted by my prison.”

When contacting an agency for help by mail, email or telephone, be persistent and polite in order to obtain the results you are looking for. Ask questions if the information provided by the agency is not clear to you. Keep in mind that many agencies are staffed by volunteers who are eager to help, but may not have the specific answers you are looking for. If the person you are speaking with is unable to answer your questions, politely ask if there is someone else available who would be able to provide the information you are requesting.

The internet can also be helpful to find information about VA benefits and community resources in your area. While still incarcerated, you will likely need to contact your reentry staff for assistance to use the internet to locate resources. Once released, you can go to your local library and/or WorkSource as well as many community-based agencies to use a computer to access reentry resources – provided you have permission from your supervising PO or the county Community Corrections agency. This guide includes web addresses, when available.
HCRV Program Reentry Specialist Letter to Reentry Veterans

Dear Reentry Veteran,

On behalf of all of the individuals and agencies included in the “Reentry Veterans Resource Guide for Washington,” we want you to know how very grateful we are for each of you being willing to put your lives on the line in order to protect all of us at home! Whether young or older, having served stateside or deployed abroad and into combat zones in locations all over the world, there are no adequate words to express the level of gratitude for the sacrifices that you and those you love have endured during your individual periods of service. We are very proud of each and every one of you for the many contributions you have made to ensure America’s stability and safety over the many years of service that you collectively represent.

The services listed throughout this reentry guide are intended as a safety net for you should you request help in a sincere and humble manner. If you use them well, the resources listed here-in will provide you some of the tools that will contribute to the overall success of your reentry. I would ask that each of you be persistent, but polite and assertive as you present your needs to the people and agencies listed in this guide. It is okay and expected that you may feel somewhat uncomfortable and apprehensive as you face the many changes ahead of you. Those feelings are normal. It is okay to not have all of the knowledge regarding how to effectively reenter.

There are many people and resources just waiting to assist you as you progress forward following release. They may offer goods, services and guidance to assist you in returning home successfully. But it is your responsibility to approach them as the ‘helpers’ that they are by interacting with them in a friendly and calm manner and after receiving services, thank them for the assistance they have provided to you. Many of the staff working in community-based agencies that you will encounter are volunteers who are there because they really want to assist you to be effective on your reentry journey.

In advance of release, take time to make a list of the kinds of assistance that you think you may need and once out be willing to share that list with the helping resources that you encounter including your Community Corrections Officer. People and agencies cannot help if they don’t know what you need. Try to relax and know that you are not alone because Corrections, the VA and the Community Agencies listed throughout this guide want to be able to engage with you and assist you to make a productive and safe return home.

So, my wish for each of you as you leave your term of incarceration is that you always remember and be proud of the fact that you are a United States Veterans. Participate with the resources prepared for you here, and don’t be afraid to ask for help. All of us need help in one form or another at times. Be gentle with yourself, and in the manner in which you approach others.

I wish you all the very best as you enter this new phase of your reentry journey,

Sincerely,

Diana Rogers, LCSW

HCRV Program Specialists provide Reentry focused outreach to imprisoned veterans as they prepare for their release from state and federal prisons. HCRV’s focus is to provide a reentry needs assessment to each veteran inmate entering the HCRV program, followed by reentry planning and if needed short-term Case Management once an assessed imprisoned veteran has released to the community. This is to ensure ease of access to VA and community-based helping resources. Additionally, HCRV is the Administrative Liaison between the federal VA, state and federal prison administrations and veteran reentry focused community partners.

VJO Specialists have a primary focus to provide outreach to veterans who are justice-involved at the county level in jails and justice communities surrounding the VA Medical Centers they are attached to. VJOs have a three pronged focus of provision of outreach services in county jails, training of law enforcement agencies regarding veteran issues, and in working with law enforcement and judicial officials to build and serve in Veterans Treatment Courts (VTCs). For VISN20’s Incarcerated Veteran Initiative, the VJOs listed above will also assist in briefly meeting with HCRV identified veterans as they return to their local VAMCs to provide a soft VA reentry to formerly imprisoned veterans.

2 Go to VA Enrollment Office:
- Obtain VA Picture Identification Card. This will assist you to reestablish your community identification following release.
- Update your Address and Telephone Contact Information. Do this even if only temporarily while getting established. Always keep VA informed about how to reach you then VA will be able to contact you for appointment scheduling and scheduling changes.
- Inform Enrollment that you have Rx needing refills and date you will be out of Rx meds.
- Schedule your first VA Medical Appointment (Vesting Exam). Even if you think you are healthy, get an initial exam to get things started with VA. If you have medical prescriptions needing to be refilled, tell Enrollment that you need an appointment before you Rx runs out.
- Request to be assigned a Primary Care Provider (PCP). All Specialty Clinic referrals go through your PCP. Don’t wait until you are sick or injured to obtain a medical provider, because then you might have to wait hours in a VA Emergency Room.
- Pick up 3 VA Releases of Information, sign them and take them to your Community Corrections Officer. If you do this ahead of time, you will be ahead of the game.

Doing this will simplify your life and also inform your CO that you are serious about engaging with helping resources in a manner that is open and emphasizes good communication between all interested parties. VA Case Managers cannot advocate ANYTHING for you without a signed Release of Information (ROI) in place.

2 Go to VA Enrollment Office:

- Enrollment Office: At Seattle VAMC, walk down hall next to ER and it is on the right 800-329-8387 Ext. 76542
- Unassigned Veteran Liaison: Lisa Lapoint, LCSW 206 277-6676
- VAMC Outpatient Pharmacy: 206 277-4000
  - Obtain VA Picture Identification Card. This will assist you to reestablish your community identification following release.
  - Update your Address and Telephone Contact Information. Do this even if only temporarily while getting established. Always keep VA informed about how to reach you then VA will be able to contact you for appointment scheduling and scheduling changes.

- Inform Enrollment that you have Rx needing refills and date you will be out of Rx meds.
- Schedule your first VA Medical Appointment (Vesting Exam): Even if you think you are healthy, get an initial exam to get things started with VA. If you have medical prescriptions needing to be refilled, tell Enrollment that you need an appointment before you Rx runs out.
- Request to be assigned a Primary Care Provider (PCP). All Specialty Clinic referrals go through your PCP. Don't wait until you are sick or injured to obtain a medical provider, because then you might have to wait hours in a VA Emergency Room.
- Pick up 3 VA Releases of Information, sign them and take them to your Community Corrections Officer. If you do this ahead of time, you will be ahead of the game.

SNAP Program in Spokane:
SNAP is the local and regional advocate for the most vulnerable people living within our community. SNAP diligently searches for long-term solutions to eliminate poverty. SNAP takes the lead in educating and empowering our low-income people. We’ve always believed that a hand-up goes a lot further than a hand-out, and have, since our inception, helped people transition from crisis to stability by caring for immediate needs while laying the foundation for future success. Our mission always has been to provide access to needed resources, and to help low-income people make connections that create opportunities to work toward self-sufficiency.

Credit Builder Program
Need better credit? We can help!
The Credit Builder program can help you establish new credit, improve existing credit or repair bad credit. We'll help you work on a budget and check your credit score. This can be done in a classroom setting, through one-on-one interaction, or both. During our two-hour class you'll learn:

- How to negotiate with collection agencies
- How to clean up your finances so you can possibly qualify for a secured credit card or Credit Builder loan
- How to use credit responsibly
- What effects your credit score
- How to access your free credit report and read your report

- Caritas Outreach Ministries 509 326-2294

This is a very extensive list for one geographic area. If I were you, I would also take a resume with me and inquire about potential employment opportunities in the community that these location operators might know about. They are in the business of assisting people and they may know of opportunities available for people that might not be generally posted. This is just a thought, at any rate, you shouldn’t have trouble obtaining enough groceries while you are working toward getting up on your feet.

Inform you Community Corrections Officer that you would like to sign Releases of Information that will allow open communication between Corrections and the VA, especially if you will be engaging with VA for Substance Abuse Treatment, Housing or Employment assistance. Doing this will simplify your life and also inform your CCO that you are serious about engaging with helping resources in a manner that is open and emphasizes good communication between all interested parties. VA Case Managers cannot advocate ANYTHING for you without a signed Release of Information (ROI) in place.

2 Go to VA Enrollment Office:
- Obtain VA Picture Identification Card. This will assist you to reestablish your community identification following release.
- Update your Address and Telephone Contact Information. Do this even if only temporarily while getting established. Always keep VA informed about how to reach you then VA will be able to contact you for appointment scheduling and scheduling changes.
- Inform Enrollment that you have Rx needing refills and date you will be out of Rx meds.
- Schedule your first VA Medical Appointment (Vesting Exam). Even if you think you are healthy, get an initial exam to get things started with VA. If you have medical prescriptions needing to be refilled, tell Enrollment that you need an appointment before you Rx runs out.
- Request to be assigned a Primary Care Provider (PCP). All Specialty Clinic referrals go through your PCP. Don’t wait until you are sick or injured to obtain a medical provider, because then you might have to wait hours in a VA Emergency Room.
- Pick up 3 VA Releases of Information, sign them and take them to your Community Corrections Officer. If you do this ahead of time, you will be ahead of the game.

A Final Note

This Reentry Resource Guide is neither exhaustive in terms of general content, or the numbers Of HCRV Reentry Resource Plans included. However, it does list many resources for VA and Community-Based assistance in the locations where the majority of veterans will release. If you are releasing to a small rural area that is not represented here, you might want to check your local yellow pages and/or request your prison Reentry Case Manager to help you to identify resources not included here but that may be of assistance to you as you plan for your release. This manual is written to be one tool of many to assist you as you plan to exit from prison. In the time that you have left to plan for release, please seek and locate as many resource tools as are made available to you in advance of release. The prison may have Reentry Planning Classes available to you and/or Money Management. We would encourage you to take part in them, if available. Doing so may require you to request a meeting with your Prison Case Manager to obtain their guidance on where to identify additional resources. You might also ask them if they can assist you and/or refer you on to someone else at the prison that is able to assist. When you reach one year prior to your release date, please request to be scheduled to be seen by the VA’s Health Care for Reentry Veteran (HCRV) Program Coordinator and Reentry Specialist the next time she/he comes to your prison to assist veterans with reentry planning. HCRV is available to serve all veterans who have a General, General under Honorable, Honorable, Psychiatric or Medical military character of discharge. HCRV Reentry Specialists work to assist Prison Reentry Case Managers, not to supersede the work you may do through your prison Case Managers. If you have either a bad conduct and/or other then honorable military discharge, you will need to be seen and assisted exclusively by your Prison Reentry Case Manager as in those circumstances, you will not qualify for VA reentry services or VA care following release.

As formerly stated in this guide, the HCRV Program Coordinator/Reentry Specialist wishes all of you to have a successful reentry experience. Please, tap into all of the many different kinds of assistance that you can and do not be afraid to ask for assistance as needed. If you don’t know how to begin planning for reentry, ask your Prison Case Manager. It is okay to not know how to get started. Everyone who does this work (Prison Case Managers, Community Based Case Managers, Your Community Corrections Officer and the State and Federal VA Representatives) who may be of assistance to you, want you to be successful in prison reentry planning so that you will return home and hopefully not need to return to the correctional justice system in the future. With that said, in the event that you do return to jail or prison at a future time, be assured that the above listed resources will continue to be available to also assist you in the future.
