ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION

1. PURPOSE: This Directive revises Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) policy concerning alternative dispute resolution (ADR) to reflect organizational changes in the Department and revised responsibilities for developing and implementing ADR policy.

2. POLICY

a. With the Administrative Dispute Resolution Act of 1996 (ADRA), the Federal Government adopted a policy to encourage Federal agencies to use ADR as a faster, less expensive and less contentious means of resolving issues in controversy than more costly formal administrative proceedings. ADR includes, but is not limited to, conciliation, facilitation, mediation, fact-finding, minitrials, arbitration, and use of ombuds; and may be used to resolve conflicts or disputes between employees, agencies and employees, labor and management, agency organizations, or other parties to a dispute or conflict.

b. VA supports the effective use of any ADR process to the maximum extent practicable and at the earliest possible stage to: (1) prevent, minimize, and resolve disputes between or among the Department, its employees and other parties in a mutually acceptable and cost-effective manner; and (2) accomplish business efficiently, economically, and productively. VA administrations, staff offices, and facilities, should use ADR in lieu of formal administrative proceedings or litigation whenever appropriate to address workplace and other disputes. National and local unions are encouraged to use ADR in resolving workplace disputes.

c. Use of ADR to solve disputes is subject to the mutual consent of management and the employee's union if the affected employee is in a collective bargaining unit.

d. ADR program design must be undertaken in collaboration with VA's labor partners. In developing effective ADR programs, VA administrations and staff offices and unions shall identify and eliminate barriers to the use of ADR to ensure that, to the maximum extent feasible, each VA employee or other parties to a dispute with or within the Department shall have access to timely and unbiased ADR programs and resources.

e. VA will support and increase the use of ADR by promoting education and training, sharing best ADR practices, and widely marketing efficient and effective approaches to resolving disputes.

f. VA will actively encourage the use of ADR to ensure a work environment that is conducive to delivering high quality services to our Nation's veterans and beneficiaries.

3. RESPONSIBILITIES

a. The Assistant Secretary for Human Resources and Administration shall:

(1) Be designated as the Department's Dispute Resolution Specialist (DRS) under ADRA, and

(2) Exercise authority under that law for the development and implementation of all Department-wide VA ADR policy, including but not limited to:

(a) Promoting the appropriate use of ADR throughout VA;

(b) Ensuring oversight responsibility for the development and recommendation of appropriate ADR training for VA employees, including supervisors and other managers in collaboration with VA Learning University;

(c) Maintaining oversight responsibility for ensuring VA Administrations and staff offices develop and implement effective ADR policies and programs;

(d) Maintaining oversight responsibility for the development, collection and assessment of data concerning the use and effectiveness of ADR throughout VA, including Administrations and staff offices; and

(e) Reporting annually to the Secretary and Deputy Secretary on VA's ADR activity.

b. The Deputy Assistant Secretary for Resolution Management (DAS ORM) shall:

(1) Be designated the Deputy DRS for Workplace ADR; and

(2) Be responsible for Workplace and other ADR, except as otherwise provided herein, under the supervision and direction of the Assistant Secretary for Human Resources and Administration, including but not limited to:

(a) Developing Department-wide Workplace ADR policy in collaboration with VA Administrations and staff offices and national unions;

(b) Providing oversight and support to the implementation of Workplace ADR and other ADR programs;

(c) Administering the Workplace ADR program for VA Central Office;

(d) Managing the VA neutrals certification program, including but not limited to:

1. Establishing categories and criteria for certification, evaluation, and recertification of neutrals, including mediators, facilitators and mentors; and

2. Establishing criteria and procedures for the suspension or decertification of neutrals.

(e) Tracking and reporting ADR activity Department-wide to:

1. Measure the use of ADR;

2. Evaluate the effectiveness of ADR; and

3. Recommend ADR program improvements;

(f) Providing oversight and support to Workplace ADR outreach, marketing, and training efforts; and

(g) Ensuring that all databases, information systems, and instruments that are developed in connection with ADR are consistent with Federal law and applicable Federal and VA regulations, policy and procedures.

c. The Director, Office of Asset Enterprise Management (OAEM) shall:

- (1) Be responsible for VA's Environmental Conflict Resolution (ECR) Program; and
- (2) Assure participation of VA staff offices and Administrations in developing and implementing VA's ECR program, to include:
 - (a) Promoting the use of ECR where appropriate; and
 - (b) Tracking and reporting on the use of ECR within VA.

d. The Deputy Assistant Secretary for Acquisition and Logistics (DAS OA&L) shall:

- (1) Be designated the Deputy DRS for Procurement ADR; and
- (2) Be responsible for procurement ADR, related to the Contract Disputes Act and Federal and VA procurement regulations, to include:
 - (a) Developing and implementing Department-wide procurement ADR policy; and
 - (b) Tracking and reporting procurement ADR activity Department-wide to:
 - 1. Measure the use of ADR;
 - 2. Evaluate the effectiveness of ADR; and
 - 3. Recommend ADR program improvements.

e. Under Secretaries, Assistant Secretaries, and Other Key Officials at all organizational levels shall:

- (1) Develop and implement ADR policies and procedures;
- (2) Develop and implement Workplace ADR programs;
- (3) Designate an ADR Coordinator with primary responsibility for daily operations of the organization's ADR program;
- (4) Ensure that informed decisions can be made by all VA employees on ADR, that all VA employees have access to appropriate information and instruction that will provide a basic understanding of ADR and ADR programs available at their facility; and that each employee has access to timely, unbiased, and effective ADR processes;
- (5) Encourage and train all VA employees to timely use conflict management, early dispute resolution, and other ADR techniques to help resolve workplace and other disputes;

(6) Collect and analyze information, as necessary for Agency and organizational needs, in a uniform manner to enable the measurement, evaluation, and improvement of VA ADR programs; and

(7) Manage Workplace ADR outreach, marketing, and training efforts.

f. VA employees shall: Be encouraged to voluntarily participate in ADR programs and processes as neutrals, parties, or non-party participants in workplace or other disputes.

g. VA ADR Council shall:

(1) Be established and chaired by the DRS, Deputy DRS for Workplace ADR, or their designee;

(2) Be composed of designated representatives of Administration, staff, regional, and field offices and union officials;

(3) Develop, review, and evaluate Federal and Department ADR initiatives and provide advice in executing those plans;

(4) Share information and resources to accomplish the Department's ADR initiatives; and

(5) Advise Administration and staff offices concerning ADR goals, initiatives, and strategies.

5. DEFINITIONS

a. ADR Program Managers(s). An individual whose duties include facilitating the day to day operations of the organization's ADR program and interfacing with various ADR elements throughout the organization and Department. ADR Program Managers should have clearly defined goals, duties, and responsibilities associated with ADR activities that should be identified, developed, and contained in position descriptions.

b. Alternative Dispute Resolution. Any process used to resolve disputes and issues in controversy, including, but not limited to conflict assessment, settlement negotiations involving third parties, conciliation, consensus building, facilitation, mediation, fact-finding, ombudsman, minitrials, arbitration, or any combination thereof. VA requires that an employee's or other party's personal decision to use ADR must be voluntary.

c. Dispute Resolution Specialist. Appointed pursuant to the ADRA, the Department's DRS is the senior official within the Agency responsible for the development and implementation of the Department's ADR program.

d. Mediation. An ADR process in which a trained neutral third party or mediator assists two or more parties find a mutually acceptable solution to their dispute without deciding or imposing a solution upon the parties.

e. VA ADR Council. A group representing VA Administrations, regional, facility, and staff offices and national collective bargaining organizations whose employees or members are affected by the development and use of ADR programs and policies. Members of the VA ADR Council and their designees are primarily responsible for advocating and facilitating ADR, particularly mediation, use throughout the Department; and facilitating the exchange of ADR information and resources among various VA components.
