Track & Field - the Chula Vista Experience

By Anthony Hardman, Public Affairs Specialist, Office of National Programs and Special Events

The great part about the National Veterans Summer Sports Clinic is the variety of unique experiences that every Veteran is exposed to throughout this remarkable week. One of those experiences is the opportunity to train where some of the world's best athletes perform; the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Chula Vista, Calif.

"The opportunity to visit an Olympic Training Center like the one in Chula Vista is a one-of-a-kind experience," said Tom Brown, Director of the National Veterans Wheelchair Games and an instructor in the field events at the Summer Sports Clinic. "This is a truly outstanding facility that inspires everyone who visits here to do their very best in the discus, javelin, shot-put and track activities. We hope that it will provide the incentive to continue trying these, or other sports activities, when they return to their own communities. It may not be these specific events, but it certainly opens the door to trying other new sports they may not have considered before. After all, if you can throw a javelin a decent distance at an Olympic Training Center, you just may consider getting involved in a local softball team or tennis club back home."

The 150-acre complex rests at the base of Otay Lakes and offers a picturesque view of the mountains and its surrounding natural beauty. Aside from track and field, sports that take place at the training center include: archery, biathlon,

Education Classes at the Clinic

Adaptive Sports & Recreation Equipment Provided by VA

... many options to support an active and healthy lifestyle

Have you wondered how you can pursue adaptive sports and recreation equipment to continue or advance your participation in sports when you get back home? If so, you will want to check out this education session taught by Kendra Betz, an expert in physical therapy from VA Central Office Prosthetic and Sensory Aids Service, also known as “Prosthetics” at VA facilities nationwide. This educational workshop provides a review of specific eligibility criteria, recommendations for working closely with your VA clinical staff to determine the appropriate equipment and tips to navigate the process efficiently. We will also review the range of sports technologies that qualify as “adaptive” as well as equipment customization available to support comfort, support, skin protection and performance. There are many options available to access the equipment you need to support your commitment to a healthy and active lifestyle. Come ready to discuss any questions you may have about all equipment and services provided by the VA Prosthetic & Sensory Aids Service.

When: Tuesday from 7 – 8 p.m. (It will not be offered on Thursday as indicated in the Clinic schedule.)

Where: Santa Rosa Room, Level 1, South Tower

Other sessions will be held daily at the Olympic Training Center and Mission Bay Yacht Club.

What is worth fighting for? Is it your health? Your family? Relationships? You? These classes are designed to help you have a happier, more productive life and help you make positive choices to improve your health and relationships. Your coaches for these presentations are Suzanne Jacobs, Beatrice Alexander, Terry Fullerton and Betsy McBride. Be sure to take advantage of these learning opportunities when your team is scheduled at these venues:

Change and Confidence - kayaking venue, the Mission Bay Yacht Club.

Goal Setting and Motivation - track and field venue, U.S.O.C. Training Center.

bobsled, canoe/kayak, cycling, field hockey, the luge, rowing, rugby, skeleton, skiing/snowboard, soccer, softball, speed skating, swimming, triathlon, volleyball, water polo and various Paralympic sports.

Greg Reynolds, an Army Veteran of Operations Iraqi and Enduring Freedom and past participant at the Summer Sports Clinic said the track and field events at the Clinic opened up a whole new world for him.

“It’s a great event,” Reynolds said. “I wasn’t a runner, but I ran the 100-meter and made some connections with the U.S. Paralympic representatives and was then able to join the team. I’ve already competed in a couple of competitions, the Desert Challenge in Arizona, and the Endeavor Games in Oklahoma, where I took second place in my class.”

Stories like Reynolds’ are the reason why the Clinic organizers and sponsors work so hard to make the National Veterans Summer Sports Clinic a reality. Having events like track and field at such a unique venue will hopefully inspire others to try some new activities.

In addition to learning about different sporting events, Veterans attending the events in Chula Vista have the chance to eat where the Olympians eat, and learn how the right foods can provide the right fuel that our bodies need to perform. Of course, a trip to the gift shop at the training center is also part of the experience.

After the week is over, Clinic participants can look back and remember what an amazing opportunity it was to train in the footsteps of America’s best athletes.
